FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Kisco's ScreenSafer/400 Enhanced in Release 2

Saranac Lake, NY, August 12, 2002: Kisco Information Systems

(www.kisco.com) today announced a new release of ScreenSafer/400 that includes several enhancements.

ScreenSafer/400 is a workstation security software tool that takes control of inactive workstations during idle time, protecting sensitive information and restricting transaction input only to the user logged on to that device. To protect a user session, ScreenSafer/400 distorts or animates screen output. In Release 2, a new screen animation scheme has been added called TWIRL. TWIRL spins a user screen at a rate that makes reading it impossible. The user is not logged off when the screen becomes illegible, so he does not lose his place or any unsaved work.

From an efficient central administration point, ScreenSafer/400 can be configured to automatically enroll users at first sign-on. In Release 2, new user options enable the administrator to control the default enrollment that comes up when a new user first signs on. Three parameters controlled by ScreenSafer/400 are the animation that appears on the screen, the time out value and which default message is displayed.

Now, when ScreenSafer/400 prompts for the password following a period where the product has suspended I/O, a screen prompt displaying the user profile name appears. This is intended to clearly identify who is actually signed onto a specific device.

Rich Loeber, Kisco's President states, "Although ScreenSafer/400 is a relatively new solution, customers have already commented that it's quite useful. Security breaches are not always motivated by malice. An employee can sit down at someone else's logged on desktop and with a click of a mouse he can navigate through an application he shouldn't be in. ScreenSafer/400 eliminates that problem."

ScreenSafer/400 can be licensed for unlimited users on any AS/400 or iSeries system for $895. Kisco Information Systems offers a free 30-day evaluation of ScreenSafer/400 that can be downloaded with complete software documentation in PDF format from www.kisco.com. For a free evaluation on CD call Kisco at (518) 897-5002 or e-mail sales@kisco.com.
