Kisco Announces The Release of ScreenSafer/400 v3.0

Saranac Lake, NY, November 8, 2005: Kisco Information Systems (www.kisco.com) today announced a new release of ScreenSafer/400 that includes several enhancements.

ScreenSafer/400 has important applications in helping organizations meet increasingly stringent corporate security policies. ScreenSafer/400 is a workstation security software tool that takes control of inactive workstations during idle time, protecting sensitive information and restricting transaction input only to the user logged on to that device. To protect a user session, ScreenSafer/400 distorts or animates screen output. The user is not logged off when the screen becomes illegible, so he does not lose his place or any unsaved work. From an efficient central administration point, ScreenSafer/400 can be configured to automatically enroll users at first sign-on.

The new release, version 3.0, offers support for complex password formats. OS/400 supports long passwords now with mixed case and imbedded blanks up to 128 characters. Previous releases of ScreenSafer/400 only supported 10 character passwords, a limitation that is now removed.

Version 3.0 also features an optional secondary timeout value. In previous releases, ScreenSafer/400 would only scramble the screen after a primary timeout value was reached. With this new feature, a secondary timeout will cause the interactive session to be terminated.

Additional new features also include a controlled ScreenSafer/400 shutdown and significant performance enhancements. The controlled shutdown feature was added to make it easier for customers to do a clean backup of their systems. The performance enhancements offer significant improvement for shops with a lot of interactive sessions.

ScreenSafer/400 can be licensed for unlimited users on any AS/400 or iSeries system for $895. Kisco Information Systems offers a free 30-day evaluation of ScreenSafer/400 that can be downloaded with complete software documentation in PDF format from www.kisco.com.
